MANAGER'S MESSAGE

We go into April hoping for good growing conditions so that crops can recover from the challenges of the last 6 months and deliver respectable yields. Better prices that reflect the ever-rising costs of production, are needed to ensure sustainable food production in the UK. Grain markets which have been heavily shorted by speculators may be lifting off the bottom as speculators start to unwind their positions. Farmer protests in Westminster are a symptom of the financial pressure that many farmers are experiencing.

Many members will have embraced the SFI schemes that are now available and have come at a very opportune time. Agriculture is playing its part in the effort to slow climate change, sequester carbon, enhance the environment, and improve soils. The SFI scheme also allows farmers to generate income with different risk, capital requirements and cashflow characteristics. If the weather is becoming less predictable and extreme these SFI options will play an important part in many farming businesses.

The uptake of SFI options on farms will put pressure on and force change to machinery and labour requirements. The threshold hectarages for viable machinery ownership will in many cases no longer be met. Couple this with the stricter affordability tests of banks and higher interest rates when machinery prices move ever higher, and many farmers will rightly question how to structure their machinery portfolio. Working with fellow members makes a very compelling argument.

Fortunately, as a member of LMR you have access to 33 years of experience facilitating solutions to your machinery requirements. LMR has a unique pool of experienced, professional members that can provide the latest machines with skilled operators to perform the tasks you require. Whether you are considering assistance with establishing and managing SFI options or with producing arable and root crops. Using the services of another member frees up your capital and time for other enterprises, whilst also often being the least cost solution. Please call LMR to discuss how this approach to managing your machinery requirements could work for you.

It is very pleasing to see how many members are embracing LMR group deals and services for the first time and benefitting from the savings. The concept of pooling your individual purchases into group deals for the benefit of all members is a powerful tool. The more that you as members take up the schemes the greater the benefits will be. The supply of fuels, ad blue, wearing parts, lubricants and aggregates are particularly popular. Be part of that success story - talk to us about your input requirements.

LMR is your co-op. We are here to deliver solutions and savings to benefit you. This could never be more pertinent than at this time of major change within farming. Please do join us at the Lincolnshire Show for refreshments and a catch-up.

Kindest regards

Andrew, Jayne & Vivienne
